Elderhostelers reach

Newry's Sunday River Inn hosted its 100th Elderhostel program last week.

Elderhostel participants from Washington, Colorado, Florida, North Carolina, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, Illinois, and Maine enjoyed biking through the area's spring scenery and studying birds of the Northeast with Chris Lewey and stained glass art with Robin Fraser.

Sunday River Inn began offering Elderhostel programs in 1983 in response to a demand for more and varied campuses (which now number over 1,900 worldwide) and as a way to expand its business during midweek and slow seasons. In 1989 the inn joined forces with Bethel Historical Society to strengthen its programming and to meet a requirement of the Elderhostel organization that programs run at commercial establishments have a clear educational focus. The two organizations now offer as many as 20 weeks of programming each year throughout the fall, winter, and spring seasons.

According to Steve and Peggy Wight, owners of Sunday River Inn, the secret to the success of the programs has been a mixture of course offerings which includes outdoor activity, thought-provoking discussion, and hands-on opportunity. Enhancing the experience for the past 10 years has been the friendly, supportive environment produced by Sunday River Inn and its staff and the unique opportunity that Elderhostelers have had to share with local residents both in their classes and on Main Street. The large number of repeat participants in each program attests to the popularity both of the courses and of the unique appeal of the area.

Course offerings for each week of Elderhostel programming at Sunday River Inn are the responsibility of Mary McVey, the inn's assistant manager and Elderhostel coordinator. Her job includes scheduling instructors, providing copy to the Elderhostel catalog, insuring the quality of each academic course, communicating with participants prior to their arrival, greeting and registering arriving guests, and serving as hostess during the five or six days of each program. "It's demanding work", Mary says, "yet the rewards are great, the Elderhostelers are vibrant, interesting people who really appreciate he opportunity to take part in our pro-

Newry folks support CPS addition, but fret financing

By WENDY HANSCOM

Bucks, not bricks and mortar were on the mind of Newry residents who attended last week's informational meeting on the proposed Crescent Park School addition.

Twenty-one townspeople turned out for the meeting, the second in a series being held this month throughout the district.

"I'm very, very concerned ... that we're going to build a beautiful school and have no staff to put in it. The funds that are put into debt service may be cut from the operational side of the budget."

JOE ALOISIO

The residents who showed up generally supported the proposal, (as did the 20 or so Andover residents at an earlier meeting), but the Newry voters asked several questions about the addition's funding--questions district officials present had few hard answers for.

Financing for the CPS project is complex. District officials say they can not forecast with any accuracy how much the addition will eventually cost the district.

SAD #44 Business Manager Bruce Powell estimated that if district voters approve the project, the average local tax bill will increase $12 to $14 for the first year of the payback

Bethel Town Meeting is quick and quiet

By MICHAEL DANIELS

It took the 80 Bethel voters who turned out for Wednesday's annual Town Meeting only an hour and a half to approve the 29 article warrant, which included a municipal budget of $1,111,692 and amendments to the town's sewer use or-

Except for turnout (once again, under 5 percent of those eligible) Wednesday's meeting was in sharp contrast to the previous year's meeting, at which voters took twice as long to dispatch the warrant, and-occasionally rancorous debate--ultimately rejected a number of items.

But voters Wednesday confined their comments largely to matters of clarification, and they ultimately approved all the articles on the warrant, agreeing in the process to all the funding requests presented by the board of selectmen and budget committee.

They even opted to spend a bit more then town officials recommended-adding $250 to the Bethel Library's funding. The addition brought the library's subsidy to $6,500, the same level it has been at

The increase in library funding, proposed by Linda Saunders, passed overwhelmingly, but a similar attempt to increase all the social service request back to last year's level fell one vote short of passage.

The social services requests had been cut 10 percent across the board by the selectmen and budget committee, who "really agonized over these kinds of cuts," according to Town Manager Madeleine Henley.

"You won't get arguments for any of us if you want to put that money back in the budget," she told the meeting, following Walter Hatch's proposal to restore the agencies' funding to last year's levels.

But, she said, the selectmen and budget committee thought it was their responsibility to hold the tax level steady, even if that meant cutting worthwhile services.

Following brief discussion, the voters present agreed to the cuts,

Lower Main Streeters fear for fate of trees

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Lower Main Street residents and business owners hope to learn more Tuesday about what impact this summer's scheduled revitalization project will have on their neighborhood--especially on the trees in their neighborhood.

The Bethel selectmen have scheduled an informational meeting for Tuesday (June 23) at 7 p.m. to discuss the summer's work--which will include replacing the storm and sewer lines in the lower Main Street area, widening the road, lowering some sidewalks, and establishing parking spaces along both sides of the road.

Town officials also acknowledge that several large trees along the way will probably have to come down, either because they are directly in the path of the work or because their roofs will be severely damaged by the digging.

The loss of the trees appears to be the greatest concern of neighborhood residents. "We are still a little old New England village," said Lynn Mason, "and the trees are a big part of our ambience and charm."

Business owners Cheri Thurston of the Sudbury Inn and Melodie Bonnema of Bonnema Pottery also worried about the trees in front of their properties, and about the aesthetic qualities that they fear will vanish with the trees.

"I'm hoping we can work something out so we don't radically change the look of lower Main Street," Bonnema said.

The selectmen and town manager have promised to work closely with affected property owners, and, for now, most of them appear to be taking a wait-and-see attitude toward Tuesday's meeting.

"We really don't know a lot of the details yet," Thurston said. "We should know a lot more Tuesday."

victory in the adult competition, but he was no match for last year's champion, Joe Aloisio, who retained his title. Aloisio was also challenged by Jim Sysko, Larry Roderick and Rockie Graham. About 50 residents gathered Sunday for games and a barbecue. Adults and youngsters ran an egg race, tossed eggs and played whiffle ball. The event was sponsored by the town's recreation committee.

Opinions Two grace notes

The recent flurry of restaurant proposals in Bethel and Newry, along with other signs of guickening business activity, is encouraging evidence that the long-awaited economic revival may finally be taking hold.

But with economic revival comes develoment pressures, pressures that have been largely dormant since the recession knocked optimism out of the economic ring in 1989.

And with development--for better and worse--once again looming, it's good to note two recent steps to set aside local land for purposes that have little to do with the bottom line.

The Mahoosuc Land Trust's acquisition of a conservation easement to a 133-acre woodland in Newry, and Dan Davis' donation to Bethel of a 1.5 acre riverside lot at the foot of town will ensure that two prime pieces of land will be enjoyed by everyone, long after the current round of economic booms and busts has passed.

The easement to the Newry land, donated by Richard and Virginia Williamson and Phyllis Stevens, will keep the woodland as woodland--however much pressures for strip development build along the approaches to Sunday River Ski Resort. The easement will protect important natural resource values, keep the woodland and its paths assessable to hikers and cross-country skiers, and mean that alpine skiers will look out over treetops rather than rooftops and parking lots.

Back in Bethel, the Davis parcel will provide the town not only with a riverside recreational area, but also with an opportunity to develop an attractive "gateway" to the village. It's a unique chance to signal to passersthrough--many of whom have with no idea of what lies ahead up Main Street--that Bethel is more than just the next-to-last right before Sunday River.

Both parcels will provide us all with enduring pleasures in the years to come. The individuals whose generosity and energy led to the donations are to be sincerely thanked.

Letters to the Editor:

STUDY ADDITION

To the Editor:

I am a parent of three children, two of whom go to Crescent Park School presently. I am also a member of the CPS-PTA. Crescent Park School is a wonderful place for our children to learn.

As you are probably aware the CPS-PTA in cooperation with efforts from SAD #44 Building and Grounds Committee are presenting information about our new addition, information in the form of public inmeeting, mailed newsletters, questionnaires, and videos that are available for viewing. I hope in some way you are able to obtain some of this very important information concerning this addition to our school. The CPS-PTA have given a large amount of time and effort to this project.

I feel we owe it to our children to know the facts-after all, it is for them this great effort is being made. My sons may not benefit from this new addition. But in my heart I feel this is the best decision we can make for the future children to come.

I know most all of us have someone we love that will benefit enormously from the new addition to Crescent Park. I fully support this great effort. Please allow yourself to make a decision based on factual information. The decision is all of ours. We'd greatly appreciate your support.

LET'S MAKE IT HAPPEN

To the Editor:

By accepting the generous donation of a 1.5 acre parcel of land on the Androscoggin River from Dan Davis the voters of the town of Bethel have made a very significant investment in the future. The parcel which can be developed with state and federal recreation funds, can provide a gateway to the village and serve as a resource for residents and visitors alike. Its location in the bend of the river makes it ideal for "out and back" canoeing in the slow current. With the continued effort and cooperation of town officials and local groups it can become a perfect place for picnics and evening canoe rides for young and old for years to come. Let's make it happen.

The remaining financial articles on the warrant passed by wide margins, including a $10,000 cut in the police reserve account--from $13,500 last year to $3,500 for the current year.

Mabel Walker asked what the effect of the cut would be on police coverage. Henley explained that the town now had three full-time officers, and that the $3,500 remaining in the account would be enough to provide coverage during their scheduled vacations or holidays, but not for sick days or emergency leaves. During those times coverage is provided by the Oxford County Sheriff's Office.

Sewer changes OK'd

Voters also overwhelmingly approved changes to the town's sewer use regulations. The changes represent a scaled-down version of a more comprehensive revision that was narrowly rejected by voters at last year's Town Meeting.

The only aspect of the changes to draw much discussion was a provision absolving the town from responsibility for damages caused by sewerage backsurges--unless the property owner had installed a back-that the expense of repaying the CPS addition's 20-year bond might cause an outcry to further cut programs and teachers in the district. "I am worried about the reactions to the additional cost being imposed on the taxpayers in the district in regard to cutting programs," Sysko said "History shows that art and music are really vulnerable. Newry, with its low percentage of representative on the school board, will not be able stop the cuts by asking for more money.

Joe Aloisio agreed with Sysko. "I feel like I'm speaking against motherhood and apple pie," he said. "It's obvious that this addition is needed--as far as creating a large school in Bethel. However, in the four years that we've been here in this area, my observation is that the commitment to funding education in general is weak in the area. Therefore, what I'm very, very concerned about is that we're going to build a beautiful school and have no staff to put in it. The funds that are put into debt service may be cut from the operational side of the budget.

Superintendent Dewaine Craig said that the latest population study done 18 months ago showed that the CPS student body may swell from the current population of 330 students to as many a 400 in the next few years.

The state has set 1 to 25 as the maximum student/teacher ratio at the elementary level, he said, so the same number of teachers will be necessary with or without the expan-

The project is scheduled to go to vote on Aug. 25. If it fails to gain district-wide approval, Craig said some additional money will be needed to make the six portable classrooms now at CPS more permanent.

That tax bite is likely to increase in future years, Powell said, as state's share of the project

The total cost of the project and its financing is currently estimated at about $8,2 million, with more than half of the money coming from the concern, especially in view of the fact that Newry currently foots 25 percent of the district's budget.

In the past, Newry residents have repeatedly complained that the town has little to say about how its contribution to the district is spent.

Newry attempted to withdraw from SAD #44 last year and set up its own school system.

Even though a majority of the town's residents voted to pull out, the withdrawal attempt failed because state law stipulates that twothirds of the voters must favor withdrawal.

Selectman Jim Sysko chaired last year's committee that organized the attempt. He pointed out last Thursday that if the district approves the CPS expansion, Newry would be stuck footing part of the bill, even if a future withdrawal attempt was Sysko said he was also worried that the expense of repaying the CPS addition's 20-year bond might cause an outcry to further cut programs and teachers in the district.

CPS Principal David Murphy said he viewed the portables as only a temporary fix to overcrowding at the school.

"There's no question in my mind that this addition is greatly needed." Murphy said. "It would allow the students the flexibility to learn in an environment that is suited for learning. Right now it is not suitable for that. We've enjoyed a very good year--in terms of combining Cres-Some residents at Thursday's meet- cent Park and Ethel Bisbee together, ing said financing was their primary It hasn't been easy, but we've had a lot of community support and cooperation from staff and the PTA. But right now it's a band-aid. It's very obvious for everyone who's involved at Crescent Park that we need more room."

Most of the townspeople at Thurs-day's meeting said they could see a need for the school addition.

The results of a straw poll at the end of the meeting showed 15 people in favor of the addition, including two of the town's Willard selectmen--Steve and Wight; two opposed and four undecided. Selectman Sysko was one of the undecided.

Another informational meeting was scheduled for Woodstock last night. Bethel residents will have a chance to ask questions about the proposal tonight at Telstar High School at 7 p.m.. A final meeting will be held June 18 in the Greenwood town office at 7 p.m.

grantee in the eventuality that the land trust became unable to maintain the terms of the easement.

Polak said the Williamsons' donation was a prime example of how a conservation easement benefits many parties. First, he said, donors are able to retain ownership of their land, which they can sell or bequeath to their heirs with the assurance that it will never be developed. At the same time, the value of the property is reduced in a way that potentially very beneficial for estate tax purposes. Land trust officers cite occasions when heirs have been forced to sell family lands to pay estate taxes--because the IRS values land at its highest and best use, even if it is in property tax abatement programs like Tree Growth.

Because of the easement, Polak said, current and future residents and visitors have a permanent guarantee of scenic views from the Sunday River Access Road as well as from many trails and chairlifts at the important component of the local economy, will be continued and protected, and traditional limited public access will be allowed. The Mahoosuc Land Trust is a non-profit conservation organization which has received donations of two tree farm conservation easements as well as two Androscoggin River properties maintained to protect their natural habitat and allow limited public use.

Listed below are a few items you may want to think about for this meeting: As was the case with the Downtown Revitalization Project, private property owners will be required to replace substandard building sewers from the town right of way to their buildings. Also, any combined sewers/storm drains "must be separated" at this time. For those who care to use it, there is a loan system set up through the sewer billing procedure.

Lower Main Street will be widened and parking and sidewalks will be built into both sides of the road. This means the loss of several trees and some problems for private TREK ACROSS MAINE property owners who may have encroached into the town right of way over the years. The Town will make every effort to resolve these problems to the satisfaction of all.

From the Bethel Police log:

Brawlers, howlers, oinkers, and OUI keep police busy

After several complaints from SAD #44 bus drivers during the school year, Bethel police are warning motorists that it is also illegal to pass a school bus stopped in a school yard with its flashing red lights on. Police Chief Dale Bellman said the penalties are the same whether motorists pass a bus stopped on the highway or in a school yard. "Passing a school bus with its flashers on carries a minimum fine of $250 for the first offense," Bellman said, "For the second offense the operator of the vehicle or the owner of the vehicle pays another $250 fine and their license will be suspended for 30 days.

Bellman said state laws passed last summer give police the authority to summons the owner of a vehicle that passes a bus even if the driver

Bethel police made two arrests last week.

Police arrested a West Paris man for OUI early Sunday morning. Ken Pulsifer, 37, of West Paris was stopped on Route 26 south of the village for driving erratically.

After failing a field sobriety test, Pulsifer was arrested and transported to the Oxford County Jail.

Police also arrested Tony L. Bennett, 27, of West Bethel for driving after his license had been suspended. Bennett was stopped by police for driving 67 in a 50 mph zone. A check of his license revealed it had been suspended. Bennett was arrested and transported to Oxford County Jail. In other police news last week, police were called to the Sudbury Inn shortly after midnight Friday morning to break up what the bartender described as a small fight in the lounge.

Police interviewed several people in the lounge. No charges were filed by the inn, police or the subjects involved.

On Wednesday police warned a group of juveniles to stay away from the Ethel Bisbee School, because of recent complaints of minor criminal mischief and disorderly conduct at the site. Last Tuesday at 2 a.m. a Mason Street resident reported hearing a lot of noise coming from the Bethel Park Apartments parking lot, the caller said a fight might be in progress.

Police responded to the complex, but found no one in the lot. Police were called to the complex again on Friday night to investigate a complaint of 2 to 3 women howling in the parking lot. Upon investigation, police again found no one in the lot. During the day Tuesday, a Route 232 resident came in to the police office to assure Chief Bellman he was trying to keep his pigs from waking his neighbor early in the morning.

The man's neighbor has complained to police several times in recent weeks that the pigs are too noisy early in the morning. The pigs' owner said he would move the pigs feeding time from 5:30 a.m. to later in the day.

He said he was also considering moving the pig pen further away from his neighbor's home.

Police warned the pigs' owner that if the problem is not resolved, he could be summonsed for disorderly conduct.

Agnes Gray School By MARTA CLEMENTS

The big news this week was our field day events. The fourth, fifth and sixth grades spent the day at Hebron Academy and were involved in all kinds of activities. The weather was perfect, and a picnic lunch was enjoyed by all before returning to school. Once back at school, kick ball and free time was enjoyed while awaiting the presentation of the blue, red and white rib-

Winners in both the 50- and 100yard dash were: Derek Leonard, first, Audrey Tikander, second, and Jeannine Dembski, third. In the 220yard run: Derek Leonard, first; Johanna Farrar and William Graiver, second, and James Bradeen, third.

In the 440-yard run: Derek Leonard, first; James Bradeen, second and William Graiver, third. In the 880-yard run: James Bradeen, first: Mark Pawlowski, second and Charlie Buker, third. The relay race among the three classes found the sixth grade in first place with a team of Audrey Tikander, William Graiver, Jeannine Dembski, and " Derek Leonard. The fifth graders finished second, with Eric Smith, Johanna Farrar, Justin Bonney and James Bradeen. The fourth graders were right behind, with runners Bryan Martin, Terry Weston, Joel Martino and Jessica Farrar.

Winners in the softball throw were Charlie Buker, first, Edwin Orr, second, and Casey Mack, third. In the frisbee throw, Charlie Buker and Edwin Orr again placed first and second respectively, and Joel Martino came in third. In the running broad jump, Edwin Orr placed first, Johanna Farrar, second and Jeannine Dembski, third. In the standing broad jump, Audrey Tikander, first, Derek Leonard, second and Jeannine Dembski, third.

The sack race and three-legged race were held in class divisions. The winners from the fourth grade in the sack race were: Matthew Blake, first, Melissa Martin, second, and Bryan Martin, third. In the fifth grade, Kristoffer Pearson came in first, Nicholas Theofrastou, second and Eric Smith. third.

Sixth-grade winners were Audrey Tikander, first, Charlie Buker, second and Derek Leonard and Casey Mack, third.

The three-legged race was fun. Fourth-graders Lindsay Newell and Jessica Skinner came in first; Holly Graiver and Melissa Martin, second, and Nathan Hutchins and Jessica Farrar, third. Johanna Farrar and Melissa Skinner placed first for the fifth grade, Kristoffer Pearson and Justin Bonney, second; Lisa Boutilier and Jamie Leonard, third. Winners in the sixth grade were Marc Pawlowski and Henry Bindbeutal, first, Audrey Tikander and Andrea Johnson and Tovah Everett and Jeannine Dembski, second, Shawn Coffin and David Stearns,

The annual tug-of-war ended with the sixth grade as champions. To earn the title they had to defeat the fifth grade and the grownups. They did it easily.

Driveways

The second and third grade enjoyed a field day of their own right at school. They began by dividing into teams and competing in relay races in the gym: spoon and ping pong ball, straw and ping pong ball, balloon pop relay, rooster eat worm relay and the clothes, dress-up relay.

The rooster-eat-worm directions were to race to the end of the gym, eat a candy worm and crow like a rooster! In the clothes relay, the team could help each other don shirts, pants, boots, gloves and hats. Then that child races the course, returns, undresses and everyone starts over!

Outdoor activities included a tugof-war and a water balloon toss! All teams scored points, no matter what the finished place. However team D came in first.

The children thoroughly enjoyed the day and a good time was truly had by all! Other school news this week included our final RIF day. Every student was able to choose a free book to keep. Of course they started reading them immediately. The kindergarten and first-graders have been working on Father's Day presents. The second-graders honored their students of the week: Ben Blake, Devin Coffin, Jessica Duplisea, Jason Emery and Krystal Farris. The third-graders built birdhouses. The fourth-graders worked in the cool of the cafeteria on that hot, hot day! The fifth-graders and their parents finished reading their books and met for discussion. The sixth-graders had their Step Up Day at the junior high school. Continue to save Campbell products labels for us. We will participate again next year in their Labels for Education program.

By the time you read this we will be out of school, but I must have at least one more column to congratulate all the students who receive academic recognition at our annual Awards Day.

The seminar concluded with a banquet for class members and their families. A low sugar, salt, and cholesterol menu was chosen. Door prizes, recipes, weekly menus, and much more information was given to all in attendance.

ANOTHER RESTAURANT PLANNED--The Bethel planning board has given tentative approval to a 100seat restaurant to be located in the barn of the Richard Grant residence in Mayville. Project organizers, Mayville's Tavern Incorporated, said the restaurant may be open by Sept 1. The planning board has asked the corporation to provide a statement of financial capability before giving final approval. The corporation must also get a floodplain permit for the proposed parking area, because the lot would fall below the 100-year flood plain level.

More restaurants planned

The national economy may still be sluggish, but restaurant developers seem willing to bet on recovery--at least in the vicinity of Sunday River Ski Resort.

The Bethel planning board has recently met with planners of two new 100-seat restaurants. And last week yet another restaurant proposal went before the Newry planning board.

Lee Wilbur, who lives in Germany and owns a condominium in Newry, has applied to the town's planning board for permission to construct a restaurant with a pub, convenience store and rental rooms on the Skiway Road.

Plans call for the "Alpenhaus" restaurant to be built on part of a 10acre lot near the Sunday River Inn. The property is currently owned by the Peter Kailey Profit Sharing Trust and is under contract to be sold to Wilbur and an associate.

East Stoneham By ELEANOR NELSON

Royce Grant and Anita Everett called on his brother, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grant on Sunday. Paul Files from Norway called on his sister, Brenda Files on Sunday.

Doreen and Jim Shugars and family are at home after being away to Virginia for a few days. After they got home, they discovered that little Heidi has the chicken pox.

Chris Littlefield is working at the East Stoneham Country Store.

Four building permits were issued to residents by the Stoneham Planning Board on Wednesday night at their meeting.

On Tuesday, Phyllis Millett and Eleanor Nelson served as ballot clerks at the voting booth at the Stoneham Fire Station. The flow of people was slow--as predicted. Ralph and Harriett Brown treated us again to pizza for lunch, which was thoughtful of them. The office closed at 8 p.m. and it didn't take too long to count the ballots.

You are probably tired of hearing about moose stories but a couple of our neighbors had a bit of adventure one morning while out for their morning walk. Pat Buck and Joan Grover go out for a morning walk at about 6:20, each one leaving their house and meeting half way to continue the walk. On this morning they were almost together below the Stoneham Post Office when all of a sudden a large moose came out of the woods right between them. I'm telling you those girls reversed their direction real quick and the moose quickened his pace, too. Luckily, Seames is a graduate of Gould Pat's husband came along in the truck and gave her a ride. The girls still walk and laugh about the incigraduate work in library and ar- dent but they walk together now, not separately.

Barry Andrews from North Waterford has been working for Albert Nelson this past week sawing wood. Minnehaha Temple #53 met Friday for their annual inspection with deputy, Marion Rolfe, Jr. of Gouldsboro in charge. A supper was served and the meeting followed. Attending as guests were Methyl Hutchins, grand chief of Maine and husband of Strong. P.G. chiefs, Evelyn Bean of Bryant Pond, Grace Horne of Mexico, grand vice chan-cellor, Wesley Rolfe of Gouldsboro and Hildred Safford of Oxford.

Attending the Western Maine Pythian Jubilee at Thomaston were P.G.C.'s Phyllis Millett and Violet Doughty, G. Man. Arlene Merrill, G.P. Dorothy McGray and Joyce

Juanita Past Chiefs Club met with Dorothy McGray for a noontime cookout and meeting. Reported that Dorothy Canwell had fallen and broken her shoulder. A sunshine box was presented to Lucy Brown.

SUMMER CONSERVATION CAMP--The Maine Conservation School is hosting 40 migrant students for two weeks of learning about Maine's natural resources. Most of the students are from Portland and many of them are Cambodians. Here several of the students participate in a group trust building activity. The school was awarded a $6,000 grant from Scott Paper Company to provide a summer camp experience for the migrant students. The group of 10- to 14-year-olds will reside at the camp and share chores. Organizers hope that the program will give the students a greater appreciation for the importance of their parents' work to the Maine economy.

TB: On the Increase in the United States

According to officials at the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), tuberculosis (TB) is making a comeback in certain areas of the United States. In a recent issue of American Medical News, the CDC's director of the division of TB elimination reports that the nationwide increase in reported cases of TB has been about 17 percent in the last three years. The number of cases reported during the past six years has increased significantly in the following states: New York, 79%; California, 51%; Texas, 34%; Florida, 19%.

TB is an infection that results from bacteria, called Mycobacterium tuberculosis, that are breathed into the lungs from an infected person, such as through coughing or sneezing. This condition can be especially contagious for persons living in crowded areas. Persons who may be susceptible to TB include those who are poorly nourished, the very young, older persons, and persons in the health professions. Those who have been in close contact with a person who has TB should go to physicians or clinics to be skin tested for the disease. Early signs of TB include fever, fatigue, loss of appetite, and weight loss. Treatment includes one or more of the anti-tubercular medicines. Commonly used TB medicines include streptomycin, para-aminosalicylic acid, isoniazid, and rifampin.

her mother could go home. Viva will be there for quite a while I expect as she will be getting radiation at the Central Maine Medical Center, but will have to go back to Maine Medical for three or four days each month to have the chemo therapy. Peggy had company Thursday night. Samantha Merrill and her boyfriend were over to make decisions about their wedding cake, which Peggy had said she'd make for them. They now plan to be married in October.

Friday, the fifth of June, was a cloudy day but no rain here. Peg went to do her work at Laverdiere's. Cousin, Barbara Honkala from Bethel called on me Friday afternoon for a short visit. She was on her way to South Paris and Norway to do some errands so called to check on Viva.

Saturday morning it was raining and it continued well into the afternoon. A lot of water fell and the gardens should be in good shape as far as the watering is concerned. Hope it didn't wash out any of the seed. Peggy and I went to Auburn to

Since the rains came to freshen the earth, we have had a number of gorgeous days. Some have been white and shining with a bit of morning mist to soften all outlines. The pond danced and sparkled. The new leaves on every tree shone under the sun. I especially was fascinated with the birches on the pond's edge. From my window they looked as if they had white blossoms among their leaves. The picture was so real that I almost went for a closer view. These have been days that poet Lowell had in mind when he wrote, "What is so rare as a day in June?"

The most jubilant exultation of bird songs has come since the heavy rain. The earth was drenched and because it was so dry it became soggy, dripping, absorbing, cleaned and laved.

Suddenly the woods burst with music, resounding with jubilation. I heard the trilling, la-la-ing of the wood thrush high among the trees. It

Habitat makes home come true

By MARK SHANAHAN

Ten years after they purchased a picturesque 20-acre parcel of land in the rolling hills of West Paris, Tom and Elizabeth Gallagher celebrated the completion Sunday of their 26-

by-44-foot, three-bedroom home. This is a dream home, a witness of love," Elizabeth Gallagher said

Denied financing by area banks and without money enough to undertake the project themselves, the Gallaghers turned to Habitat For Humanity, a non-profit organization dedicated to providing affordable housing for those in need.

The Androscoggin Habitat for Humanity, one of seven chapters statewide, assisted the Gallaghers by securing building materials and soliciting donations from the private sector.

For their part, the Gallaghers and their five children agreed to work a minimum of 500 so-called "sweat equity hours" constructing their new home and logging 100 or more hours on Habitat For Humanity's next project.

The result, a handsome pine-sided country home situated in the remote woods off Koskela Road, is a tribute to cooperation, hard work and a whole lot of faith.

"This surpasses even the dreams promised us by Habitat For Humanity," said Tom Gallagher, who works as a carpenter.

A stone's throw away from the Gallaghers' new home, on an acre of land just over the West Paris-Woodstock town line, Brian and Ellen Brochu will soon move into their new home, which was also made possible by the Androscoggin Habitat For Humanity.

The Brochus, who currently reside with their seven children in a housing project in Auburn, say they will be delighted to move out of the city and into their nifty three-bedroom, NEWRY APPOINTS DEPUTY two-bathroom home.

"This is the ultimate," said Brian Brochu, who is employed as a welder at Bath Iron Works, "I'll tell you, if it wasn't for Habitat For Humanity, we wouldn't be able to afford a house of our own--and I have a good job.'

Among those in attendance at Sunday's ceremony celebrating the openings of the two houses were Paul Belisle, president of the Androscoggin Habitat Humanity, numerous religious leaders from the Lewiston-Auburn area, Oxford County Commissioner Norm Ferguson of Hanover, and a collection of Habitat's board members and volunteers. "This is great, a testament to what can happen when people are helping people. I hope Habitat For Humanity will do some more of this in the future," said Ferguson, who was the day's featured speaker.

With more than 117 affiliates operating in the U.S., it appears likely that Habitat For Humanity will continue to make its benevolence felt in the State of Maine.

"There are some really good people in America. I sure know that," said Brochu.

Hire Your Kids & Your Spouse in Your Business

This article is brought to you by Jane D. Gray, CPA

If you own and operate a trade or business, you may be able to get tax-favored dollars from your company by hiring your spouse or children.
Did you know you can pay up to $3,600 in wages to your child free of federal income tax? That's because income from wages can be offset by your child's standard deduction which is $3,600 for 1992. Your business can take a deduction for the wages, thus lowering your individual or corporate tax bill. The net effect is to take $3,600 out of your business completely tax-free. And, if your completely tax-free. And, if your child is under age 18, and your business is a sole proprietorship or family partnership, the child's earnings are also exempt from Social Security (FICA) and unemployment tax.

To qualify for this tax break, the wages must be paid for necessary work actually performed, and the wages must be reasonable. Essentially, the wages paid to your child should be the same as you would have paid to an unrelated person for the paid to an unrelated person for the same work.

If you hire your spouse, the spouse's earnings will be fully taxed, but you may be able to increase the fringe benefits your family receives from your business. Certain fringe benefits would be deductible by your business and non taxable to your spouse. Some examples (depending on your legal form of business): group-term life insurance, medical expense reimbursements, dependent care assistance, company paid travel care assistance, company paid travel for business purposes, a company business car, and education assistance. Your spouse might also be eligible to make tax deductible contributions to a company retirement plan or an IRA.

Contact us for details about hiring family members in your business. We can assist you with a plan that max-imizes benefits for your family group. Corner of Vernon & Main Streets, Bethel • 824-2802

At one point during the first act of the Children's Dance Theater's production of "Mary Poppins," a character looks into the audience and states simply, "When you're with Mary Poppins you're suddenly in places you never dreamed of."

Fortunately for the overflow crowd in attendance Friday night, the brilliance and delicacy of those imaginary places overwhelmed the reality of an almost oven-like Helen C. Berry Auditorium.

Borrowing a line from one of the evening's two dozen dance numbers, it was "hot, hot, hot" and I wasn't even moving. Incredibly, clad in their clinging lycra and spandex get-ups, Sue Farrar's dance company showed no signs of wilting in the Indeed, after a few uncertain steps and a technical foul up or two, Friday's performance ended up a big winner, a tribute to the talent and hard work of Miss Sue's dancers and their parents.

The story, about a clever girl named Jane Banks (delightfully played by Kimberly Tibbetts), her restless brother Michael (played convincingly by Brian Zinchuk), and the siblings' relationship with super nanny, Mary Poppins, was punctuated with spirited song and dance numbers, ranging from a classical ballet piece (opening Act III) to the pump and drive of C&C Music Factory (Act

Although the evening was weighted towards dance, Heather Roberts' characterization of the magical Mary Poppins, Jim Lowe's take on the grizzled Admiral Boom, Peter Lawton's Bert, and Jane Rolfe's hilarious Cockney Ellen proved that the acting had not been lost in the shuffle.

It was the dancing, however, that roused the audience and finally stole the show. Choreographed by Sue Farrar, who operates the Children's Dance Theater of Bethel, each number was skillfully executed by a team of dancers.

Particularly successful were the tap pieces, including "Darktown Strutters," with dancers Heather Jordan, Renee Royer, Lydia Mills, and Jaime Caron; and "Cabaret" with dancers Jenny Sue Howe, Chelsey Bartlett, Heather Jordan, Carrie Rolfe, Erica Gundersen, Renee Royer, Lydia Mills and Amanda McGrew.

The fantastic finish of Friday's production of "Mary Poppins," "practically perfect" as it was, left the audience breathless and wanting more. But for now--Let's all go fly a kite.

If you own and operate a trade or business, you may be able to get tax-favored dollars from your company by hiring your spouse or children. Did you know you can pay up to $3,600 in wages to your child free of federal income tax? That's because income from wages can be offset by your child's standard deduction your child's standard deduction which is $3,600 for 1992. Your business can take a deduction for the wages, thus lowering your individual or corporate tax bill. The net effect is to take $3,600 out of your business completely tax-free. And, if your child is under age 18, and your business is a sole proprietorship or family partnership, the child's earnings are also exempt from Social Security (FICA) and unemployment tax.

To qualify for this tax break, the wages must be paid for necessary work actually performed, and the wages must be reasonable. Essentially, the wages paid to your child should be the same as you would have paid to an unrelated person for the same work.

If you hire your spouse, the spouse's earnings will be fully taxed, but you may be able to increase the fringe benefits your family receives from your business. Certain fringe benefits would be deductible by your business and non taxable to your spouse. Some examples (depending on your legal form of business): group-term life insurance, medical expense reimbursements, dependent care assistance, company paid travel for business purposes, a company business car, and education assistance. Your spouse might also be eligible to make tax deductible contributions to a company retirement plan or an IRA.

Mahoosuc Arts notes:

The Mahoosuc Arts Council held its annual meeting on June 7. The chair, Art Marshall, called the meeting to order following a reception with entertainment provided by Ross Swain. Thanks were expressed for support, both financial and through volunteer effort, given during this, the sixth year of the Council and the third season as a nonprofit body.

While celebrating the successes of the Council, Marshall raised the challenge of becoming financially self-sufficient as a major objective during the next two years.

A full schedule of performances was offered during the 1991-92 program year including six community performances. An effort has been made to provide a diversity of media and performers for both the schools and the wider community.

Fund-raising efforts have been primarily "behind the scenes." The chair noted Wende Gray's coordination of local fund-raising, thanked Gould Academy for its support and in-kind assistance, and expressed appreciation for the continued commitment of founding sponsors. SAD #44 now includes a line item in the annual budget which benefits the

The efforts of the executive directors to secure grant funding were noted. This year marked the completion of the original grant from the Bingham Foundation. The Foundation has agreed to extend the grant for two years, making available $6,000 each year, with the understanding that this is to be a "sunset" grant; meaning that we will need to replace that fund-raising source (accounting for 20 percent of our budget) after the two year time peri-

Thanks were given to the Public Relations Committee for its efforts to promote performances, greet those who attend, and sponsor receptions.

The following new board members were elected: Lucia Schwarz, Tim Kavanaugh and Carol Parker. The Council has undergone change, as Marguerite Graham, one of the executive directors, has thanked both resigned. Art Marguerite and Vicki Rackliffe for their immense efforts.

Marguerite's absence will be felt; all will miss her wonderful energy and enthusiasm. Marshall introduced Kathy Slack, who was approved by the Board to take Marguerite's position beginning June 1. Marguerite thanked Barbara Douglass and Wende Gray who
